

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

71 got eyeglasses or had old ones refitted, and a great many had their teeth put in good condition. In some school rooms, where the teacher was especially interested, every child in the room went to the dentist. Miss Wilson found one child of 12 who was almost totally blind and who had never been to school. She had him placed in a school for the blind. Two children, mentally deficient, were placed in schools fitted to their needs. She organized Health Crusaders' Leagues, and at the end of the year, 800 children had done their health chores and won pins. Tooth-brush drills were established in the school, and lectures were given on First Aid, Home Nursing, and Care of Infants to the senior and junior high school girls. There is no school physician in Cheyenne, no free dispensary, and no free laboratory. Throat cultures had to be sent to Denver. When parents could not afford a doctor, a private doctor was asked to give his services. Much free dentistry had to be asked for, so the above report speaks for itself. Miss Wilson writes, "One feels truly like a pioneer. Sometimes it seems that it requires more optimism than a person can have to keep believing in one's work and making other people feel that it is worth while, but the response that it is possible to get from the children and the opportunity for good in teaching health, pays for all discouraging things."

Time-Books.—The National Organization for Public Health Nursing has recently had published by Mead & Wheeler, of Chicago, a very usable and practical loose-leaf time-book. Except that it is loose-leaf and has left certain headings blank, the book is similar to the one in use for so many years by the Visiting Nurse Association of Chicago. The nurses who have more than once been unsuccessful in securing the old form will be glad to know that the new form, once the cover has been purchased, will not be any more expensive and ought to be much more convenient than the old book.

"AN INVITATION"

Readers of the JOURNAL who so generously responded to its invitation to send one new subscriber, will be interested in the result of the effort. The June count of the subscription files showed the highest number reached this year,—500 more than last month. This is worth working for.